The Willey Family

A Genealogy

Compiled by

Mrs. Earl Lawrence Willey

Castile, New York

August 1956

n: 041

78 6865 14

The names of Willey, Willy, Wiley, Willie, Wylie and other spellings of the word were derived from places where the first bearers of the names lived. Those people resided at early dates in England and Scotland and were of the landed gentry and yeomanry of Great Britain. Probably, the earliest line was descended from William deWilley of Shropshire in the early thirteenth century.

2012807

Records show that the first of the name in North America was John Wiley or Wylie who came, about 1635, from London, England to Reading, Mass.

Favorite christian names have been Abraham, Edward, Isaac, James, John, Joseph, Richard, Robert, Samuel, Thomas, and William.

Members of the family have spread to every state in the union and have aided in the growth of the country which their ancestors helped to establish. They have been characterized by their energy, integrity, patriotism and civic and humanitarian interest. Captain John Willey of Connecticut was one of many by that name who served in the Revolutionary War. Among those who have attained distinction are: Waitman T. Willey (1811-1900), Virginia Statesman; John Heston Willey, Maryland clergyman and author; Malcolm MacDonald Willey (b. 1897) Maine sociologist and author; and Reverend Willey, clergyman at Gainesville, N. Y., Methodist Church in 1829.

One of the most ancient and best-known coat-of-arms of the family is described as follows:

Arms..."Argent, three griffins passant sable."
Crest..."A rose bush vert, bearing roses argent."

(Extracts from "The Name and Family of Will(e)y," compiled by the Media Research Bureau, Washington, D.C.).

According to J. H. Spaulding's "Historical Relics of the White Mountains," a horrible fate overtook one Willey family in 1826, when all of its nine members were buried by an avalanche in New England. Therefore, that line cannot be traced.

ANCESTRAL LINES OF MRS. NORMAN WILLEY,

NEE LAURA CEMENTHA KELLOGG

The Kelloggs were an ancient Scottish family of the shire of Stirling during the 14th century. According to tradition, Great Britain was their original home. They were partisans of James VI of Scotland, came to England with him and remained there until they settled in New England. Their coat-of-arms is a horizontal golden bar across a red shield. Above the bar are two golden fleurs-de-lis, below is a golden ring.

Phillipi[1]; probably son of Thomas and grandson of Debbon, was the first of the name in England from whom theKelloggs in the New World could trace their descent with certainty. Phillipi appeared first in Bocking, Essex in 1583, when his son Thomas was baptized. Had 10 ch. of whom son Martyn (Martin) was line of descent.

Martin[2], bapt. 1595 in Great Leighs, Eng., m. Prudence Bird in 1621. Was a weaver and cloth worker in Great Leighs and Braintree. In 1673, owned a parcel of land and a cottage, part of which stands yet in "Martin's Yard." Was a church warden and appeared in 1639 in the Archbishop's Court at Braintree. Had 7 ch. of whom son, Josef (Joseph) was the line of descent.

Joseph[3], bapt. 1626 at Great Leighs, came to Farmington, Conn. about 1651. Joined church there in 1653. Moved to Boston in 1657, where he bought 16 acres of land for $700. That property is now worth more than $100 per square foot. Later, he went to Hadley where he ran a ferry to Northampton. Was on a committee which bought the land from the Indians and laid out the town. Was Sergeant, Ensign and Lieut. in military company for 30 years. Was an energetic, strong and affectionate man, who took creditable part in the struggles of early settlers. Became wealthy, left very interesting will. M. twice, had 20 ch., son Nathaniel was the line of descent.

Nathaniel[4], b. 1699 at Hadley, m. Sarah Boltwood in 1692. Was in Deerfield in 1693 when Indians attacked, but escaped and warned the townspeople. Was Lieut. in militia and was one of the largest taxpayers in Hadley. Charter member of church there. D. 1750. Had 8 ch. of whom son, Ebenezer was the line of descent.

Ebenezer[5], b. 1722 in Amherst, m. Sarah Clapp in 1751. Was in 8th Mass. army and d. in 1776 at Ticonderoga during Revolutionary War. Had 3 ch. of whom son, Jonothan was the line of descent.

Jonothan[6], b. 1760 at Amherst, m. Mary Holland of Pelham in 1783. Was a cordwainer. Served in Continental Army in 1780. He and wife d. 4 days apart in 1823 and were bur. in a single grave in S. Amherst. Had 3 ch. of whom son, Ira, was the line of descent.

Ira[7], b. 1786 at Brattleboro, Vt. m. Ruth Dickinson of Amherst in 1808 Lived there and at Montague, where he was shoemaker and saddler. He d. 1840 at Montague; she d. in 1875 at Springfield. Had 10 ch. of whom Porter was the third-born.

Porter[8], b. Apr. 18, 1812 at Montague, Mass., m. Cementha Pratt Oct. 5, 1834 at Marlboro, Vt. She was b. there Apr. 27, 1815, dau. of Artemus and Hannah Holliday Pratt. They lived in the east until 1852, when they came to N. Y. and settled at Nunda. Went back east in 1858, stayed 6 yrs., then returned to N. Y. and spent the remainder of their lives here. He was an inkeeper and flour mill owner at Cooperville on the Genesee Valley Canal. D. 1894, she d. 1895., bur. at Mt. Morris. Had 3 ch., Henry Porter, James Byron, and Lyman Haywood.

Henry Porter[9], b. Sept. 6, 1835 at S. Hadley, Mass., m. Nov. 10, 1859 at Nunda, Louisa Ann Jones, b. May 14, 1839, Grove Center, Allegany Co. On their honeymoon, they journeyed to S. Amherst, Mass. by horse and buggy. Lived there until 1863, when they returned, with their two eldest children, Arthur James and Ida Lorette, to N. Y. Located in their homestead on the State Road, Mt. Morris, where they lived the rest of their days. He d. 1917, she d. Apr. 15, 1921, bur. in Jones Cem. Nunda. Had 9 ch., the 7 youngest, b. in Mt. Morris, were: Carrie Louisa, Laura Cementha, Myrtie May, Grace Edith, Harry Porter, Ernest Hammond, and Ethel Daisy.

Laura Cementha Kellogg, b. March 30, 1866, m. Nov. 19, 1884 at Mt. Morris, Norman Willey, b. March 7, 1862. (Genealogy is from "The Kelloggs of the Old World and the New," by Hopkins, 1902.

The name of Jones is wide-spread and appears to originate from Herbert, County of Vermandois, who came to England, at the time of the Conquest, with William the Conqueror, (1066-81). From the Count descended Adam Fitz-Herbert who acquired lands in Monmouthshire, then part of Wales, about 1300.

The family name of Jones was adopted during the reign of Henry VIII (1509-47); that was the period when most Welsh families took surnames. By 1600, branches of the family had spread to many parts of England and Wales; by 1622 the family was established in Ireland, near Dublin.

The ancient coat-of-arms displays a shield, divided vertically, one half of which is blue, the other half is red. Upon this shield are three silver lions, back on their hind legs in a fighting position.

Herewith is a part of the Jones ancestry of Mrs. Norman Willey. William Jones was a Patriot Soldier of 1776. William's son, John C. (1780-1827) had 12 ch. of whom the eldest ch., Samuel Cole was the line of descent.

The following excerpts are from Minard's History of Allegany Co. and Hand's History of Nunda:

"In 1820, Samuel Cole Jones came to Allegany Co. from Vt. with his parents. He was a kind and patient son who helped his mother raise 11 ch. after his father's death in 1827. He returned to Vt. in 1830, married his boyhood sweetheart, Lorette Woodworth and brought her to Allegany Co. He was a self-made man of affairs; was a school-teacher and also held all of the principal town offices in turn. Although not a lawyer, he handled legal matters for his neighbors and appeared as their counsel in justice court; was a surveyor and land agent for the famous Church family of Belvidere. He owned 1,000 acres including all of the Swains area. Became a big lumber man.

Among his sisters and brothers were Mrs. Montgomery Thorp, Mesdames Lewis and Luzon Van Ostrand, Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Townsend and Thomas and William Jones."

In 1848, Samuel and his family went to Nunda where he bought lands in Cooperville on the Creek Rd. The Genesee Valley Canal, in its heyday, passed through his property. On one bank, stood a flour mill owned and operated by Porter Kellogg, Father of Samuel's future son-in-law. The mill was run day and night and required 4 coopers to make barrels in which to ship the flour. Thus, the name Cooperville originated. Parts of the canal locks are in very good shape yet.

The farm, known as the Jones Homestead, was owned later by Samuel's son Capt. John C., and his grandson, James W. In 1866, Capt. Jones replaced the original farm house with a massive structure at a cost of $10,000. From the attractive stone foundation to the picturesque glass-enclosed cupola, the stately country mansion became a real landmark. Although no longer occupied by the Jones family, the original beauty of the dwelling has been preserved, with slight alterations, by its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Brooks.

Samuel Cole Jones, (Jan. 12, 1802-Aug. 22, 1883), m. Lorette Woodworth, (Feb. 1, 1808-May 1, 1888). They were b. in Vt., m. there in 1830 and were bur. in a family cemetery, located on a spot chosen from their own land. They had 3 ch., all b. in Allegany Co., John C. (1833-Apr. 8, 1875), Laura, (1835-1907) and Louisa Ann. (May 14, 1839-Apr. 15, 1921).

Louisa Ann Jones and Henry Porter Kellogg, m. Nov. 10, 1859 at Nunda.

The family is deeply indebted to the following people without whose invaluable help this history could not have been written:

Mr. Charles F. Putnam, 10 Richardson Circle, Framingham, Mass., who did extensive researching and typing on several occasions.

Mrs. Nina Willey Jones, aged 89, of 675 E. Gage Ave., Memphis, Tenn., who loaned a most fascinating genealogy compiled in 1950 by Mr. Putnam. (Mrs. Jones and Mr. Putnam are direct descendants of John Willey of the 4th generation.)

Mrs. Marjorie C. Frost and Mr. James J. Cutler of Nunda, who spent many hours in research.

Due to their splendid cooperation, a difficult task was turned into a pleasant pastime. I wish to extend sincere thanks to them.

The Author.
